He has no experience in public affairs outside of his own State, in which he once rose to the rank of Governor. This was during the war, and he used his position to thwart and embarrass, rather than sid the General Government, and was only restrained from active sympathy with the rebellion by a prudent regard for the public temper. He addressed a mob of incendiaries, assassins and thieves in this city as his "friends," and proposed that the breach between the South and the nation should be healed by an acceptance, by the whole country, of the Constitution of the so-called Confederate States. He has never uttered a noble sentiment that anybody remembers; never originated a measure of public beneficence or utility, and owes whatever position he has reached entirely to the intrigues and manipulations of party. He has no traits of character to inspire attachment or enthusiasm, and has no claim whatever on the gratitude of his countrymen. His nomination against a man like Grant is a piece of presumption unparalleled in the history of political control of the so-called confederate of the countrymen. The Two Tickets Compared.

Amongst all the estimates of the two tickets now before the country, we have found nothing nearer the mark than the following, which we copy from Frank Leslie's New York Weekly, which is not distinctively a political paper:

On one side we have the foremost General of the age, and to whom, perhaps, more than any one else, the country owes its first debt of gratitude, and who, if he has had little experience in statesmanship, has nevertheless shown, when occasion has offered, some of its highest qualities. He is supported on the ticket which he heads by a man of great legislative experience, of unblemished character, and who is thoroughly familiar with public affairs. We need not say we refer to General Grant and Speaker Coifax.

The Democratic party, after an animated struggle, has nominated for its standard-bearers ex-Governor Horatio Seymour and General Frank Blair. The first is a man of fair average abilities, of thoroughly respectable private character, and of a line that has given us a number of very distinguished, public men. He has no experience in public affairs out every distinguished, public men. He has no experience in public affairs out every distinguished, public men. He has no experience in public affairs out every distinguished, public men. He has no experience in public affairs out every distinguished, public men. He has no experience in public affairs out every distinguished, public men. He has no experience in public affairs out to virte both, but at last, when this was impossible, it followed the stronger will and wrote "Hickory-nuts." And until the whole word was written, neither knew how much the thought was impossible, it followed the stronger will and wrote "Hickory-nuts." And until the whole word was written, neither knew how much the thought was impossible, it followed the stronger will and wrote "Hickory-nuts." And until the whole word was written, neither knew how much the thought was impossible, it followed the stronger will an drot knew, and so remained pa answer was correct, much to his astonishment.

By placing my hand above those of two tyros, I have made Planchette scribble off whatever I wished; and by taking their hands, while their other hands were upon the instrument, I have drawn it to me or sent it from me. It will occasionally do tolerably well for a single person, but I have found that without any muscular action I can invariably compel it to write what I wish and at wish at the company of the control of th

I wish and as I wish it—even if I choose to misspell.

Such knowledge destroys the romance, it is true, but it only heightens the charm of the reality; for it is competent in skilled hands to draw from an unsophisticated person answers which are the property of that one only. Yet I have still to learn the instance where the stronger will would not control.

My conclusions, then, are these:

1. That Planchette is dependent upon the same principle as the "turning table" for its motion—i. c., on the peculiar power of certain persons. Into this subject 1 cannot at present enter. It has been done folly by Count Agenor de Gasparin, and in Dr. J. Esduile's work on Mesmerism as Applied to Surgery.

3. That the stronger will controls in which the "mediums" do not know or guess. This accounts for its wild pre-dictions and laughable blunders.

5. That left to itself it will naturally write nothing until there be a clear thought in the mind. thought in the mind.

I reserve my opinions for the present concerning the source of its motion; the characteristics of good "mediums;" the application of this little instrument to the relutation of certain grave and important errors; and its use in the investigation of mesmerism, biology, animal magnetism and matters kindred thereto. These are properly the topics for purely scientific articles; but if I have by this plain statement pointed out the way to such straihtforward, intelligent study, I shall be glad.

Committee issued an address to the Democrats of that State in which, among other things, they tell then, 'Let your warfare be aggressive. Deothing." The Pennsylvania Dem cratic Committeemen are wise in their generation. They know that there is nothing harder to defend than the in-

BRICK POMEROY has surrendered, body and breeches, to the "false and deceptive" Seymour and that "pestilent Blair family." He is now buslly engaged in swallowing his own words, which is the nastlest dish he ever sat down to down to.

tions, in which the party strumpets of New York were the leaders and promoters. We have the result in the shape of the weakest nominations that imbecility, narrowness, and utter tack of the appreciation of the exigencies of the times could devise or secure. It leaves to all men who have the glory, honor, and prosperity of the country at heart no alternative but to throw the whole weight of their influence in the scale for Grant and Golfax.

9. The doctrine of Great Britain and other Enropean Powers, that because a man is once a subject he is always so, must be resisted at every hazard by the United States as a relie of the feudal times, not authorized by the law of nations, and at war with our national honor and independence. Naturalized citizens are entitled to be protected in all their rights of citizenship, as though they were native born. No citizen of the United States, native or naturalized, must be liable to arrest or imprisonment by any foreign Power for acts done or words spaken in this country, and it so arrested and imprisoned, it is the duty of the Government to interfere in his behalf.

it is the duty of the Government to interfere in his behalf.

10. Of all who were faithful in the trials of the late war there were none entitled to more especial bonor than the brave soldiers and seamen who endured the hardships of the camp and cruise, and imperiled their lives in the service of the country. The bounties and pensions appropriated by law for these brave defenders of the Union are obligations never to be forgotten. The widows and orphans of the galiant dead are the wards of the people—a sacred legacy bequesthed to the United States' protecting carg.

Hair Vigor, For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can

This wonderful invention is attracting wide-spread attention. It is a simple device; made of tin, comprising three sections, which can be used together on separately. The water which steams the food is rapidly distilled into a delicious soup. The "Miracle' is seen in the placing in one section—fowns or meats, together with cabbage, onions, turnips, potatoes, &c., &c., &c., and steaming two or three kinds of puddings at the same time—without the slightest change of fisyor. It is a philosophical result which satonishes all, and has given the steamer a popularity never equalled by any cooking invention.

Every family should have one. No family can afford to be without it. It will pay for itself in a very short time.
